

CASE STUDY: MARY'S HUSBAND HAS LEFT HER

Mary comes to your house and tells you that her husband has left her. She goes to the same church you do, but she hasn't been there in a long time. She is in a highly emotional state and tells you that she and her husband have been arguing all night. About an hour ago, he packed his clothes into a suitcase and said he was leaving her and wouldn't be coming back. She tells you what a good wife she has been and can't understand how this could have happened to her. She is bitter against her husband and threatens to get even. She immediately says she is miserable and wants you to help her. What would you do?
